Reception For Pastor.
At the reception held last evening in the Methodist Protestant Church on Apple street in honor of the new pastor, Rev. Robert Cairns and his wife, over 200 people availed themselves of the opportunity to make their acquaintance, and the affair could not have been more successful.

The church was very prettily decorated with palms, ferns and roses, carnations being used on the tables. The decorations were carried out in pink and white. Those on the reception committee were Mrs. Lloyd Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Dr. Gallacher, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Borg, Worth Kilpatrick, Miss Elmer Kilpatrick, and the Misses Eliza and Harriet Berger.

The hours were from eight to ten, during which daily refreshments were served to all by the young ladies of the church. Kilde's orchestra furnished music the entire evening.

Rev. and Mrs. Cairns arrived in Connellsville last Saturday and will make their home on South Pittsburg street.

The King's Daughters of Trinity Lutheran Church held their regular monthly meeting last evening at the home of Mrs. Charles Dittermore at Poplar Grove. There was an unusually large attendance and following the regular business a delightful luncheon was served on the lawn about the house, it being especially lighted for the occasion.

The program was in charge of Miss Sarah Seaton and the following rendered selections in an able manner: Mildred and William Coleman, duet; Helen Dittermore, piano solo; readings by Miss Pearl Triles, Mrs. Brown, Coughlin and Miss Mary Peret. A number of new names were handed in for the bazaar that is being made by the ladies of the church, as a method of raising money.

Flashlight photographs were taken of these present, following the program.

Miscellaneous Shower.
A miscellaneous shower will go given in the home of Mrs. T. T. Dittermore on Johnston avenue, Thursday night at 8 o'clock. Mrs. F. T. Dittermore, Mrs. T. F. Fair and Mrs. W. R. Jones will have charge of the shower, which will be in honor of Rev. R. E. Cairns, who recently took up the ministry of the Methodist Protestant Church.

Home Wedding.
A very simple, but pretty wedding was that of Miss Nellie Edwards to Rufus Edward Ash this morning at 6 o'clock at the home of the bride on Witter avenue. Rev. C. M. Watson, pastor of the Christian Church, of which she was a member, performed the ring ceremony, which was witnessed by only the immediate relatives.

The bride wore a traveling gown of blue broadcloth and a straw colored hat trimmed with blue. Neither the bride or groom was attended. The wedding was held in the parlor, and was followed by a wedding breakfast. The dining room was very prettily decorated with pink and white carnations. The couple left on the 7:29 P. M. train for Atlantic City where they will spend a couple of weeks. They will then take up their residence in Clarissa, W. Va., where Mr. Ash is in partnership with his brother, W. W. Ash, running a large general store.

Miss Edwards is the talented daughter of Mrs. J. A. Renner, and is a graduate of both the Connellsville High School and Bethany College at Bethany, W. Va. She was at the latter place that she met Mr. Ash and their acquaintance ripened into more than friendship.

$1,000,000 FIRE IN NEW YORK

Plants Along Brooklyn Water Front and Vessels Destroyed.

New York, June 22.—A fire that called out most of the land apparatus in Brooklyn and three fireboats swept through the plant of the Gross, Austin & Ireland Lumber company in Williamsburg and along New York creek as quickly last night that the entire plant, one of the largest in Greater New York, was almost completely destroyed.

The flames jumped across to the creek and then communicated to a number of vessels tied up in the vicinity before the fireboats got to work. The barkentine Stanley E. Minor, hailing from Athens, N. Y., and loaded with yellow pine, was destroyed. The fire also reached the Berlin Brick company's plant, across the creek, and two brick barges moored there were burned.

The fire loss, including the Gross, Austin & Ireland plant and the vessels and their cargoes destroyed was estimated at upward of $1,000,000.

THE VACANCIES ARE FILLED

General Health in Town is Good—Big Temperance Rally Thursday—A Citizen Billed for the Mill Town—Other Notes.

Special to The Courier.
SCOTTDALE, June 22.—At the meeting of the School Board the millage was suggested at nine mills, the same as last year, in a recommendation made, but after a careful investigation of all conditions it was concluded that this amount would cripple the school needs, and it was decided that a ten mill rate be established, seven mills for school purposes and three for building. A per capita tax of $1 was also levied upon all non-property owning taxables. Out of town pupils will be charged the same rate of tuition as last year, $1 for the High School and $1.15 for the grades. The term will begin on September 5 and will continue for nine months. The teachers are called to meet with the board on September 3.

Several vacancies in the teaching force were filled. S. S. Downum of Mt. Pleasant was elected teacher of languages in the High School at $55 per month. He is a graduate of Otterbein University of Ohio. J. C. Warner of Meyersdale, a graduate of Franklin and Marshall College was elected as assistant in mathematics at $75 per month. Miss Mary E. McFarland of Greensburg, a graduate of Goucher College, Baltimore, was elected teacher in English at $65 per month. Miss Jessie Dinger of town was elected teacher of the new primary room at $55 per month. Miss Nina McFarland of town was elected teacher of the additional fourth grade room at $55 per month, and Mrs. Louisa Rorer of town to the vacancy in the sixth grade at $55 per month, and Miss Laura J. Jones sewing teacher at $25 per month.

General Health Good.
Health Officer Frank P. Goshorn reports that the general health of the town is excellent now, and that statistics of a contagious or infectious type is very small. There are but two cases of measles now, and one of these came in from West Virginia. There is one case of typhoid fever, a daughter of Mike Eannardine of Bridge street, who is now recovering from the disease. If no new cases are developed the general good health of the town in these respects will be perfect.

Big Temperance Rally.
The St. John the Baptist Temperance societies invite the people to attend a temperance rally to be held in Temperance Hall, South Broadway, Scottdale on Thursday evening, June 23, at 8 o'clock. The principal speakers will be Rev. Michael Doyle of Pittsburg and Rev. M. A. Lanning, pastor of St. John the Baptist Church. The meeting promises to be a very interesting one.

Circus Coming to Town.
In the time nearly every small boy had about given up hope of a circus here this summer, the Frank A. Robbins Shows have hung the bills for their circus on July 5. The small boy now can make arrangements to be borrowed for the occasion by some grown up that needs an excuse for going to the show.

Is Back to the Store.

Scorching Days Welcome.
These days are welcome to the farmers, for they say that the warmth is making the corn grow at a splendid speed. The corn has been looking very backward, and farmers hope that this warm weather will continue and make the crop worth something after all.

Barelay-Sheppard.
The marriage of Nellie J. Sheppard of Scottdale and Harrison E. Barelay of Conneltsville was solemnized by Rev. D. W. Michael, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church at the parsonage the other evening. Invitations Issued.
Invitations have been sent out by Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Hough for the marriage of their daughter, Mabel, and Henry G. Warheit of Scottdale. The ceremony will take place at the bride's home on Wednesday, June 29, at 11:30 in the morning.

Poor Directors Here.
R. D. Wolf and E. N. Dixon were here yesterday meeting with Poor Director J. M. Kennell and the three spent the day investigating requests for outdoor relief. Several cases were examined into as the needs of the people indicated. The Poor Directors say that the amount of outdoor relief required throughout the county is very large, so extensive in fact that one Poor Director does not care longer to investigate alone, but that his practice has lately to join together and mutually investigate conditions, thus saving each director at first hand the information necessary to issue relief upon, and also facilitating the supplying of the needs of the people who require care at the hands of the county.

Many cases are discovered or reported in which the people have waited until the very last hour has gone, and then appealed to the Directors. The outdoor method of helping is much cheaper than in taking the people to the county home, which is now filled.

ELECTION FRAUDS

Are Revealed at Arnold as Result of a Contest.

Special to The Courier.
GREENSBURG, June 22.—A hearing was held at the office of Judge Alexander D. McConnell of this place yesterday afternoon for the benefit of those who were interested in the Arnold and Hyde Park primary elections and to endeavor to disperse the cloud of suspicion that hung over the vote in those districts. Messrs. Schwick, Sullivan and Weddell first had an injunction read to the court, which they had prepared, by Attorney J. M. Hunter of Pittsburg who in connection with Attorney Wyant handled the case for the three persons who claim to be elected to the assembly. The court was asked to grant an injunction on the county commissioners restraining them from opening the ballot boxes from these two precincts and from counting the votes. Mr. Hunter argued that there was no legal authority that could call back the body of men who had made the count since they had been discharged and that the commissioners had no right to re-count the votes.

The injunction was over-ruled by the court and at 2:30 o'clock the Hyde Park box was opened and the re-count was begun by the Commissioners Lauer and Miller. Attorney Joseph A. McCurdy, solicitor for the commissioners was judge of the re-count and directed that the work should go ahead. It required but a short time to see the irregularities that had taken place at the Hyde Park polls. The papers in the box showed that not one of the election officers were sworn or affirmed.

It was also discovered that 21 voters who were not registered were allowed to vote. The names were added to the list but there were no affidavits found on which they had sworn to their residence in that precinct. Attorney Wyant stated that the election was regular and that there was no visible sign of any fraud on the part of the election board.

The Arnold ballot box was next opened up and it contained a large number of crooked things that the other. Arnold in the fraud center in the case. First, against the 127 votes which were polled for the highest candidate in the Democratic party last November, not one Democratic vote was found in this box. There were no oaths or affirmations of the election officers whatever. Robert Mase who died some time before had a vote in his name and two Socialist votes were counted for the Republicans. It was also discovered that about 50 of the rank and file ballots had also been voted. A bunch of ballots were also found in the box which had not been folded, giving the impression that the box had been open at the time that they were placed in.

The seventh error was that there were 51 votes cast in excess of the number furnished. Eighty, 55 votes had been cast and counted of persons who were not registered in the district and therefore were not qualified voters. Another irregularity in the fact that George Risher had been duly elected as judge of the Arnold election board and he received and received for the ballots of June 2. The returns show that James P. Mulvihill was acting as judge of the election. It is also alleged by John Mahy who was present at the hearing that two or three persons parked for the voters one-half of their tickets.

The re-count was finished shortly after 5 o'clock and the hearing was adjourned until 10 o'clock this morning.

Second-Hand Pianos Attraction of Sale

May Be Bought on Reasonable
Terms at the Reduced Prices

Several Discontinued Styles in Chickering, Knabes and Hardmans Offer Exceptional Opportunities to Economical Buyers.

It is in the low prices at which used and second-hand pianos are being sold that this preparatory sale has its greatest attraction. This sale was gotten up for the very purpose of selling all used and second-hand pianos. We are making preparations for other big things during the next six months.

To get good and ready—it means—that during this month (the month of June) we should sell every used and second-hand piano on our floor. Every old style and all of the most expensive styles have also been reduced in price to make them move during the month, rather than to carry them through the summer.

In other words, we are "cleaning up" during this entire month, preparatory to some big plans we have maturing for the last half of the year. And it is just that we say, that the greatest attraction of this sale is the used and second-hand end of it. But straight through the entire sale the attraction is the prices. As much abused as the word "BARGAINS" is the only word to be used.

There is not a discontinued style, or a used or second-hand piano in the lot that represents a dollar of profit. The prices have been cut down to the very last dollar they will stand to let us come out even. In fact, the prices are so low that we doubt very much if some of them will not show a small loss.

The whole idea that is before us is, that these pianos must go, and they must go this month, and every instrument must be marked with this thought in mind. The person who wants to save money in buying a piano stands in his own light if he does not buy one of these at once. High Grade New Pianos in Discontinued Styles.

JEFFRIES AND CAMP

Move on to Nevada For the Big Fight on the Fourth.

San Francisco, June 22.—The Jeffries and his party, including intimate friends, such as Corbett, Director McKensie, Walter Kelly, Bob Vernon and others, were in a special car attached to the through train and half a dozen newspaper men were also along. Those people who have insisted all along that Jeff might invent some excuse for not fighting the black must know of their hats to the man from northern California. He is the one who has made the first start for Nevada and his actions in getting under way will do much to convince the people in the east as well as in California that the bout will take place as scheduled. There has been absolutely no delay by Jeff and his camp.

Jeffries is once more a 10 to 6 favorite over Jack Johnson. The announcement of the change in the odds by which the retired champion is once more installed as a favorite at the same price that marked the beginning of wagering, was made last night by Betting Commissioner Tom Corbett.

The announcement came as a surprise, for it had been expected as soon as Johnson showed his true form in training at the beach that his supporters would flock in with their coin.

Wants, for rent, for sale, etc., cost only one cent a word.

"But I tell you he climbed in the window," persisted the excited boy. "I saw him Antoine's hat."

Kirby, his eyes still on the girl, bowed with courteous formality. "It is entirely true, madam," he said lightly. Unhappily it isn't a story at all. I have not the honor to be here by appointment, as you evidently infer, but simply by accident—by virtue of the only open window in the street."

"And he doesn't know yet whether he's going to be the good prince or the bad prince," triumphantly added the General, proudly eyeing his hero. Adele drew back, frightened, un-nerved, her hand creeping to the door-knob. "It is a mistake," she breathed, wide-eyed with sudden fear. "You are a stranger."

"Please don't be afraid of my being the bad prince," smiled Kirby in his most reassuring and light-hearted manner. "If you will permit me, madam, to take this hat, I will vanish as I intended."

"There are men watching the streets," she said steadily, holding him with her eyes. "I saw them from my window. Is it that?"

All fear had vanished, and in her voice there was but apparent a concern for him, the stranger and inter-loper.

He nodded and turned to the listening child. "General, do you want to be my trusty friend and helper? Good! Then do just what you did before—out there on the balcony." When the child, with eager sincerity, had obeyed, Kirby added in an earnest and steady voice: "I don't know whether or not you can believe a stranger on his bare word, but I'll try. Last night I heard that the worst scoundrel I know was in New Orleans. I put him at sunrise this morning at the only one chance to get out of sight—the open window of a strange house. I took it and," he finished with a faint smile, "that's where I am."

She was silent. Then, "But you said it was a fair meeting. Why, then, should they?"

"I can't prove it was fair," he interrupted grimly. "I left him lying with his pistol in his hand, but it wasn't there when they found him. They

"think I shot down an unarmed man because they found no weapon upon him."

"You mean it was stolen?" she asked wonderingly.

He smiled, shaking his head. "No common thief would have dared to. Whoever did it must have been worse than the dead man. Stealing that pistol makes me if I don't get away. That's all, and all I can say. If you can't believe me," he added quietly, "there's only one thing for you to do—go to that window and call those men in here for me. But if you can believe me—well, permit me to take this hat."

There was a pause, during which they looked each other in the eye, he calmly waiting for her decision, she as calmly estimating him. Then she quietly left the room, quickly returning with a black felt plumed hat.

"Take this instead," she said evenly, tendering it. "It is my brother's."

Thanking her, he turned to go. But now she was at the window, and after one hurried glance she confronted him with white, drawn face and eager, restraining hand.

"Do you know they are still there, watching?" she cried. "How cruel to hunt a man down like that! You will never be able to get by them. They will kill you."

"If I start they'll know somebody tried to get by," he returned lightly. "and they'll probably finish me one way or the other. This way doesn't involve any legal procrastination. That's why I prefer it."

"Don't try it, please don't," she whispered, pushing back her heavy hair. "I cannot let you make the attempt. It is suicide!"

"Why, that's about all that's left to me—to make a good try," he smiled. Then, suddenly serious and diffident, he added: "May I tell you something? Perhaps the circumstances might excuse it if it sounds overbold for a stranger to say. But it is something mighty precious that the last thing I heard before going out to make my try was the voice of a beautiful lady speaking kindly to me and, more precious still, somehow, that it was you. I only wish I was going to have a chance to remember it longer."

"It isn't kindness," she returned simply. "I know that you told me the truth. I believe you are an honorable gentleman, and in great danger. I have suffered so much myself that it is enough for me to know about you. Listen! Would it be safe for you to cross from our front door to a carriage?"

"Don't try to do anything for me that," she said. "If it were a closed traveling carriage—just by the door?" she persisted steadily.

"My story is true, and you have believed it—somehow. But nobody else would," he said grimly. "Please do not try to do anything for me. I don't know your family, but I'm mighty certain that they'd turn me over to—"

"You really must permit me to do as I think best," she interrupted, with an imperious little gesture softened by her eyes. "We must make the best plan possible under the circumstances. It is out of the question for you to boldly leave the house, and that settles it. I couldn't let you make the attempt if you were my worst enemy. Now, I will see that the General promises to keep entirely secret the method of your entrance and on no account to mention the word 'escape.' I know he will promise faithfully, and we can rely upon it. Meanwhile we must think of some plan. There must surely be some way." She stopped and assumed an unconcerned expression as Poulton, one of the servants, entered.

The French mulatto hesitated and then, pointing straight at Kirby, inquired, "Shall I take the colored gentleman's portmanteau to the carriage?"

Adele turned, sudden inspiration in her eyes. "Yes, yes!" she cried, breathless with excitement. "And, Poulton, tell them to lift the top and let the carriage be closed."

The servant obeyed, picking up the late Colonel Moreau's green portmanteau, and when she had gone Miss Randall cried:

"Now I know! Now I have found the way!"

"But—I don't understand," stammered Kirby. "I cannot permit you to make any effort on my behalf. And, then, there is your family!"

"NO, MADAM, COLONEL MOREAU WOULD CHANGE HIS PLANS AGAIN."

"Hush!" she whispered. "Here comes the family now."

Kirby unconsciously started, then drew himself up as the door opened, disclosing Miss Duvreze, Ann Pledgell and Anatole Veaudry.

"Anatole," cried Adele as they passed, astonished, "we must ask you to give up your seat in the carriage. You see, our friend has come, after all."

"Our friend?" echoed Miss Duvreze, coming eagerly forward. "What—is it possible? You mean, Adele, that this gentleman?"

"Yes," cried Adele, her eyes smoldering with excitement. "Quite possible, as you see. Aunt Duvreze, Miss Pledgell, Mr. Anatole Veaudry, I wish to present—Colonel Moreau. The colonel's plans have changed. He rides with us to the plantation."

"Oh, how delightful!" exclaimed Miss Duvreze, while the others expressed their astonishment and pleasure—"that is," she added playfully, with an arch glance at the pseudo Moreau, "if Colonel Moreau will not change his plans again."

Accustomed to such astounding turns of fortune, Kirby quickly recovered the composure shattered by the totally unexpected and amazing introduction of Adele. "No, madam," he replied gravely, bowing to the still archly smiling Miss Duvreze. "Colonel Moreau won't change his plans again."

And in this unhesitating manner, under false colors which had been hoisted by the protecting, merciful and ignorant hand of one who had known his identity would have been the last to act as his savior, came Cameo Kirby to the house of his enemies.

SONS OF VETERANS MEET

Annual State Convention Being Held at Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

Wilkes-Barre, June 22.—Nine hundred delegates of the Sons of Veterans are here for the annual state convention which opened today and some 400 delegates of the ladies auxiliary are also here for their convention which opened at the same time.

There is much business to be done, chief of which is the eligibility of General Edward Tschudy, of Birmingham, Ala., as a member of the order. The reserves are strongly for him while there is a large faction of the elite body opposed to him. The question of increasing the per capita tax 12½ cents is also to come up, this extra money being needed for the convention expenses each year. A number of other matters will come up and the conventions will be kept busy until Friday.

Colonel William Baker, commanding the encampment, made the work of the reserves as light as possible owing to the heat. Last night the entire 1,600 took part in a sham battle, being aided by a fireworks display in depicting the battle of Gettysburg before several thousand spectators.

are recognized as the critical clothes buyers; they give more thought to style in clothes than older men; and they ought to. When a man gets established in business and in society he can afford to be a little less particular, though many such men are still very exacting.

But young men are apt to give so much thought to style that they neglect quality; if the clothes look smart and lively, young fellows are quite likely to forget to insist on having them good also.

There's no reason why you shouldn't have the smartest style, with the best and highest quality.

Hart Schaffner & Marx

make our young men's clothes: the styles are very lively; but the fabrics are always all-wool, the tailoring is the best possible.

Have style and quality both; just as easy to have both, as to have one. Suits $20 to $25.

The bargains we offer represent the loss of money; we are overstocked and must reduce before the closing of our inventory, June 30th. When necessary we never hesitate to lose money; at times that is the wisest thing a merchant can do; we could fill this page telling you the whys and wherefores of the values represented, but in that case, the values would be cut out.
